196 MILLINGTON (Edward) AN ELEGY upon the Lamented Death of Edward Millington, the famous Auctioneer [sic]. Folio broadside. UNCUT. £45 0 0 John Nutt: [London, September] 1703

** The month (7 ber) has been added in a contemporary hand.
The poem commences:—

“Mourn!—Mourn! you Booksellers,—for cruel Death
Has rob'd the Famous Auctioner of Breath;
He's gone,—he's gone,—ah! the great Loss deplore;
Great Millington,—alas!—he is no more;
No more will he now at your service stand
Behind the Desk, with Mallet in his Hand:
No more the Value of your books set forth,
And sell 'em by his Art for twice the Worth.
Methinks I see him still, with smiling Look,
Amidst the Crowd, and in his Hand a Book:
Then in a fine factious pleasing way,
The Author's Genius and his Wit display.”

There is an amusing description of the auctioneer's manner of selling, which opens thus:

“Come, Gentlemen,—come bid me what you please;
Upon my Word, it is a curious Piece,
Done by a learned Hand,—and neatly bound:
What say you —come,—I'll put it up,—One pound;
One Pound,—once, twice; fifteen: Who bids;—a Crown:
Then shakes his Head, with an affected Frown,
And says, for Shame, consider, Gentlemen,
The Book is sold in Shops for more than Ten.
Good lack a day!—'tis strange, then strikes the Blow
And in a feigned Passion bids it go.

Then in his Hand another Piece he takes,
And in its Praise a long Harrangue he makes;
And tells 'em that tis writ in lofty Verse,
One that is out of Print, and very scarce.”

are told that this eccentric collector frequently made annotations "in a fit of spleen." His collection was a very remarkable one, and it is said that he expressed a wish that it could be sold intact, in order that the world might see the kind of books which constituted the library of "a country parson." Dr. Maltby pointed out that if it were to be absorbed in any great library such as the British Museum, its value as a collection would be lost. Parr saw the justice of this observation, and, in spite of his age, set to work on the foundation of this catalogue, which is an important record of the library of a man of letters of the eighteenth century.

Contemporary full russia, gold lines on sides and back, t.e.g. £4 0 0 H. G. Bohn: London 1842

** Lowndes 639: "The Bibliomania is written in dialogues or conversations, the characters introduced are well-known book collectors of the author's acquaintance. The great value of the work is in the notes, which abound with anecdotes of Books and Book-Collectors, and an account of the rarer articles in their collections, and the prices at which they were sold, extracted from the sale catalogues. This work has in a great degree given a stimulus to the collecting of our early literature and bibliography in this country, on which subjects it will always be consulted as an authority." Lowndes then gives a key to the fictitious names, such as Aurelius—G. Chambers, etc.

Rudolph Haupt: Halle a. S 1905-1924

** A complete set of this index of fifteenth century types, which is indispensable to all students of Incunabula. In this book all known Roman and Gothic types of the period are classified, the Roman by the "Q" (i.e., whether case in one piece with the "u," or separated), the Gothic by the various forms of the capital M. At the beginning of part one is a plate which enumerates 101 varieties of the Gothic "M." Then follows a list of the types peculiar to each town and printer, with the measurement and other characteristics, such as initial letters, etc., and references to facsimiles; and an index classified by the "M" and arranged by the type measurement; thus enabling one to identify any Gothic type in a few moments; any one who has spent hours in wading through the Gesellschaft fur Typenkunde, Burger's Monumenta, and other "monuments" of a similar nature will appreciate this conspectus.

568 INCUNABLES. REICHLING (D.) APPENDICES AD HAINII-COPINGERI REPERTORIUM bibliographicum additiones et emendationes. Seven parts in two vol., and separate general index. 8vo, parts I.-VII boards, linen backs, parts VIII. original wrapper. £8 0 0

Monarchii 1905-1914

** Reichling gives full details of books unknown to Hain and Copinger, and particulars of other books which have been previously imperfectly described. Each of the six parts (parts 7 and 8 being indexes) is in two sections. The first contains 1921 unregistered works, which are numbered consecutively through the six parts. The second half gives the full titles of books already possessing Hain or Copinger numbers. They are arranged in these numbers, but in one alphabet, in each part. The index volume has separate author indexes for the two sections, and an index of towns and printers, which includes both.

569 INDEX LIBRORUM PROHIBITORUM et expurgandorum novissimus. Pro Catholicis Hispaniarum regnis Philippi iv., Regis Cathol. Ill. ac R.D.D. Antonii a Sotomaior, supremi praesidis, et in regnis Hispaniarum, Siciliae, et Indiarum Generalis Inquisitoris, etc., jussu et studiis, luculenter et vigilantissime recognitus: de consilio supremi senatus Inquisitionis Generalis. Juxta exemplar excusum. Folio, Royal Arms of Spain, title printed in red and black, with original blank leaf at beginning. Contemporary English calf. £6 10 0

Madriti ex typographaeo Didaci Diaz. Subsigatum Lldo. Huerta.

[False imprint, probably printed at Lyons or Geneva] 1667

** At the end of this index follows:—

The wording of the half-title: Indices librorum prohibitorum et expurgandorum novissimi, Hispanicus et Romanus, anno MDCLXVII, proves that these two volumes, though printed separately, were issued together by the publisher.

The Spanish Index includes many world famous writers, as Bacon, Boccaccio, Marot, Dante, Rabelais, Machiavelli, etc. In the preface there is a short note on POPE JOAN. "This reprint [of the index of 1640] is formally condemned by the subsequent Spanish indexes of 1709 and 1747, as printed out of Spain and by heretics, but the censors dare not impeach its fidelity." (Mendham, The literary policy of the Church of Rome, p. 172.) The ascription is in accordance with Mendham, p. 171.

The Roman index contains a decree against certain Venetian printers and book-sellers. This is a slightly enlarged reprint of the index of 1664, where we get for the first time a formal condemnation of the theories of COPERNICUS and GALILEO, and of all other writings which affirm the MOVEMENT OF THE EARTH and the STABILITY OF THE SUN (see the fourteenth decree on p. 208). ** An important item in the history of typography. Straus and Dent, "John Baskerville" (1908), pp. 21 and 65; D.N.B. xii. 456. The beautiful types from which this book was printed were cut by the brother of Baskerville's foreman, William Martin. The D.N.B. remark upon the typographic beauty, and Dibdin, for whom McCreery printed "Bibliomania," highly praises the printer-poet's work. The text is interesting, and "contains a few well-written notes upon the origin and development of the art of printing."—D.N.B. Timperley dwells upon the beauties of the poem, remarking upon the "general chasteness of language and a glowing love of freedom."

** Brunet II. 427. "Edit. faite à Milan vers 1830 par les soins de M. Tosi." The British Museum Catalogue says "12 copies only. Sir S. Lee in his article on the Admirable Crichton in the Dict. Nat. Biog. accepts his and the next item as genuine sixteenth century productions, probably because the copies in the Grenville collection in the British Museum are bound up with some contemporary tracts on Crichton. It is a slightly altered version of the famous broadside issued by Aldus Manutius in 1580, of which the two copies in the British Museum are among the very few known. The broadside was printed by the Brothers Guerra, but is known to have been inspired by Aldus.

Robert Ballard: Paris 1650

** This book claims the invention of printing for John Mentelin, the first printer in Strassburg. The author claimed to be one of his descendants. These books are chiefly remarkable as being a shameful falsification of history, in order to establish the claims of Mentel, of Strassburg, to be regarded as the inventor of typography. The theory was founded on a pretended chronicle of Strassburg, which was said to assert that in 1440, 1442 and 1447 Mentel engraved letters in wood and metal; and that he employed Gutenberg, a goldsmith of Mayence, to make the punches and matrices, and that a servant of Mentel communicated the secret to Gutenberg; that they went both to Mayence, where they became associated with Fust, a famous merchant of that city; that the Emperor Frederick, in recognition of Mentel's discovery, allowed him to inscribe on his coat-of-arms a golden crown and a lion's head. The author of this tract, Jacques Mentel (an alleged descendant of Johann Mentel) to support his thesis falsified the statements of Gebroiler, Sprengel, and Specklin, even altering their text (Bigmore & Wyman, II., 37).

599 [MEYNELL (Francis)] TYPOGRAPHY. The written word and the printed word. Some tests for types. Ernest Benn, Ltd.: London 1925

** There is no text or notes to this work, the facsimiles are beautifully reproduced in collotype, and are in the main restricted to those in the roman letter, the aim of the author being to interest those of a more modern view than that of the fifteenth century.

601 MORISON (Stanley) FOUR CENTURIES OF FINE PRINTING. Upwards of six hundred examples of the work of presses established during the years 1500 to 1914. With an Introductory Text and Indexes. Folio, half holland, with prospectus and original dust wrapper. £17 10 0

Ernest Benn: London [1924]

** Limited to 390 copies, this work contains examples of the work of famous printers, such as Antonio Blado, Lorenzo Torrentino, Francesco Marcolini, and the Gioliti, to name only a few Italian sixteenth century printers. Of the early French Renaissance period, there are 150 examples, including Simon de Colines, Geoffroy Troy, Frédéric Morel, and Michael Vascosan. The Lyons school is headed by a number of pages by the de Tournes. The eighteenth century rococo period is illustrated by a number of title pages, chapter openings, and final pages. The severer English eighteenth century is also well represented. The section devoted to the nineteenth century embraces reproductions of the work of Bensley, Bulmer, Wm. Pickering, John Philp, Louis Perrin, Jules G. Fick, and others. The modern section exhibits a choice of the work of Bruce Rogers and Berkeley Updike. The text is printed in an exact reproduction of the letters cut by Francesco Friffo for Aldus Manutius.

classifies this device under the press of Plantin's widow and Jean Moretus, and does not appear to have known that it was used by Christophe. There is some doubt as to whether the above is one or two books: Brunet does not mention the edict and the British Museum copy has not got it (British Museum General Catalogue, "C." xvii., p. 55); on the other hand Mendham and Rooses clearly describe them as together (Joseph Mendham: The literary policy of the Church of Rome, p. 74; Rooses, Christophe Plantin, p. 207). This is the second Index issued by Plantin. There is another edition published in the same year, having 119 pages (Rooses)

646 TYPE SPECIMENS. CASLON (William, I.) A SPECIMEN [of Roman, Italic, Gothic, Coptic, Armenian, Syriac, Arabic, Hebrew, Greek, and other types, and ornaments], by William Caslon, Letter-founder, in Chiswell-Street, London. Folio broadside, printed on one side only. £8 10 0

1734

** Not in the British Museum.

The second main issue (the first having been issued from Ironmonger Lane) of CASLON'S FIRST SPECIMEN SHEET. Mr. MacRae (Two centuries of type founding, p. 49) says: "THE FAMOUS AND NOW VERY RARE FIRST SPECIMEN SHEET which, in 1734 Caslon sent out from Chiswell Street . . . with the exception of these three [the Canon Roman, English Syriac and Pica Samaritan] all the types shewn in the specimen of 1734 were cut by Caslon himself." Messrs. Bigmore and Wyman remark: "In the full length portrait of Caslon, the original painting of which is in the possession of the present firm [for a reproduction see frontispiece to Macrae] its founder is depicted holding a copy of this broadside . . . in 1722 Caslon cut for Bowyer the beautiful fount of English used in printing Seldon's works, and the Coptic types for Wilkins edition of the Pentateuch. In spite of all the difficulties which Caslon encountered he brought the art of type-founding to a perfection previously unattained, and rendered English printers entirely independent of the Dutch, from whom they had previously obtained all their best founts. The Caslon Old Style displayed in this specimen is still the finest English book type.

FOR A FULL SIZE FACSIMILE OF THIS SHEET SEE MACRAE.

647 TYPE SPECIMENS. FRY (Edmund) PANTOGRAPHIA. Containing accurate copies of all the known alphabets in the world, together with an English explanation of the peculiar force or power of each letter; to which are added specimens of all well-authenticated oral languages; forming a comprehensive digest of phonology. James Watson for David Scot and George Stewart: Edinburgh 1713

** Couper, Watson's History of Printing, pp. 3-4: "Not the least service he [Watson] did in this direction [the improvement of Scotch printing] was to issue his History of Printing. In it he set forth the chief causes which he considered were producing the prevailing bad workmanship in Scotland. . . . Watson's History has a permanent value, and that is due to a brief sketch of the history of printing in Scotland which it contains. It has been claimed for it that it is the first history of printing these islands ever saw. The claim must be modified to apply to Scotland only."

650 TYPE SPECIMENS. WILSON (Alexander) & SONS: A SPECIMEN OF PRINTING TYPES [Block-letter, Italic, Roman, black-letter, Hebrew and Greek]. Folio, broadside. £5 5 0
